1905 History of St. Peter's Parish, Chillicothe, Ohio

The following text is taken from the souvenir program of the Seventh General Convention of the German Roman Catholic State Union of Ohio, held on the 4th through the 6th of June, 1905, in the school hall at St. Peter's Parish in Chillicothe. A copy of the program was found in the effects of Joseph Hess of California, uncle of the wife of Dr. Richard C. Rooney of Chillicothe. Dr. Rooney produced some fine copies of the booklet and kindly gave one to the Society.

The program contains a sketch of the history of St. Peter Parish in German and English, on facing pages. Since the German version contains many details not included in the English, that version is presented here, as translated by your editor. A few additional statements, noted within brackets [ ], are drawn from the English version.

We are fortunate to have this sketch, since Chillicothe at that time was in the Archdiocese of Cincinnati and the sketch is contemporaneous with those of parishes in the Diocese of Columbus that were prepared in 1903 and 1907 and were published in our Bulletin in August, 1990, July, 1992 and from February, 2004 to October, 2006.

The program also contains a sketch of the town of Chillicothe, in German and English; a one-page story of St. Margaret's Cemetery in English, a one-page historical sketch of the St. Ignatius Beneficial Society of the parish (German), and a one-page statement to the Knights of St. George Commandery of Chillicothe (English); and rosters of the last two organizations.

A list of the organizations forming the State Union includes, from the present Diocese of Columbus:

*St. Ignatius Verein, Chillicothe
St. Georgius Ritter, Chillicothe
St. Paulus Jung Maenner Verein, Columbus
St. Fr. Xavierus Verein, Columbus
St. Johannes Verein, Columbus
St. Georg's Ritter, Div. A, Columbus
St. Georg's Ritter, Div. B., Columbus
St. Joseph's Hof, C.O.F., Columbus
St. Johannes Verein, Corning
St. Joseph's Verein, Delaware
St. Peter's Verein, Portsmouth*

Historical Sketch of the Catholic St. Peter's Parish in Chillicothe, Ohio

The beginning of the Church in our part of the country, as elsewhere, was small and insignificant. The first missionaries, who did not shirk toils and hardships in exercising their sacred duties, passing through the Ohio Valley, from time to time visited Chillicothe, which then was a flourishing town. They found a few scattered Catholics living in this region, for whom they offered the holy mysteries and dispensed the holy sacraments. These families formed the nucleus of the future Christian parish. The number of Catholics saw such steady growth of German- and English-speaking families that moved here, that the Most Rev. Bishop Fenwick of Cincinnati, granting their requests, promised to send them a resident pastor.

In the year 1837 the zealous missionary priest Heinrich D. Juncker (later Bishop of Alton, Ill.) was sent to the congregation as their first pastor [by Rt. Rev. Purcell]. Shortly after the arrival of Father Juncker the congregation obtained from the Episcopalians a lot with a church building on Walnut Street. However, after a few years this church was already too small and in the year 1841 the thought arose of building a new church. In the year 1843 Rev. Father Juncker journeyed to Europe to obtain assistance for his parish, and during his absence Rev. Amadeus Rappe was parish administrator.

After his return, Father Juncker was called to Dayton, Ohio, but in recognition of his efforts for the Chillicothe parish he was invited by the Most Rev. Archbishop Purcell to lay the cornerstone of the present St. Peter's Church. The impressive ceremony took place on June 29, 1845, the Feast of St. Peter, the glorious apostle. In the Fall of the year 1845 the parish received its second pastor in the person of Rev. Otto Borgess, who zealously continued and completed the work begun by Father Juncker, so that on the 6th of December, 1846, the new church was ready to be occupied.

That much desired day of rejoicing was held for the untiring, active pastor, as well as for the parish members; they then saw dedicated to the future worship of the Most High the beautifully completed house of God, the result of their united work and their Christian sacrifices.

At Pentecost of the year 1847 Rev. Father Kalcher, S.J., replaced Father Borgess. Soon his confreres in the order, Reverend Fathers D'Hope, S.J., Carroll, S.J., and Tschieder, S.J., joined themselves to him. Now the Catholics in the "old Capital City" and the region were plentifully provided with clergymen.

In the year 1849 the number of English-speaking members had increased to such a size that they could establish their own congregation and they separated from St. Peter's. After some five years of unceasing activity and sacrifice, the Rev. [Jesuit]

Fathers departed from Chillicothe, to the great sorrow of the faithful, who had learned to esteem and to value the prudent and zealous shepherds.

In September 1851 Rev. Edward Lieb was sent by the Archbishop to Chillicothe to take over the care of St. Peter's. This Father earlier had belonged to the Capuchin order and as such he had lived seven years in the imperial court in Vienna, where he was teacher and tutor of Prince Maximilian, who later came to a sad end as Emperor of Mexico.

During the long tenure of Father Lieb the congregation purchased a new cemetery and the real estate with the present pastoral residence and the Sisters' convent. The schoolhouse was soon erected there. In the year 1881, after having become gray in serving the congregation for thirty years, the aging pastor laid down his office in order to return to private life.

On April 3, 1889 the venerable priest rested in the Lord and was laid in the new cemetery, amidst his old parishioners, a good many of whom he had ministered to and had handed over to the earth.

Rev. Ernst Windhorst succeeded him as pastor. A few years later Pope Leo XIII. conferred on Father Windhorst the title of Monsignor with the rank of domestic prelate of His Holiness. Rev. Father Windhorst made many notable improvements in the church and school, very valuable for convenience and soundness. There was likewise an addition built to the old schoolhouse and the present schoolhouse adapted. [The interior of the church was renovated, the frescoes adding much to its beauty. It was during his stay here that the new St. Margaret's Cemetery was conveyed to the members of both Catholic parishes of this city.]

On the 24th of June, 1895, Monsignor Windhorst left Chillicothe and took over the administration and pastoral office of St. Ludwig's Church in Cincinnati. Days after the departure of Rev. Windhorst, Rev. W. B. Miggeel began his service. On June 29, 1895 the congregation celebrated its golden jubilee. This day began joyfully and turned in to a holiday for all the Catholics of the region. The Most Rev. Archbishop Elder, of blessed memory, as well as many clergy of the diocese honored the congregation by their attendance at the celebration. The official speaker was the late Monsignor Jessing, founder and rector of the papal college in Columbus, Ohio. In his address he heartily congratulated the congregation for the magnificent results of a half-century.

In September of the same year the administration of the parish was entrusted to Rev. F. H. Bene. This Father soon won the hearts of the flock and began to plead the necessity of clearing the remaining debt of the parish, which he succeeded in accomplishing through the cheerful cooperation of the congregation. When Father Bene was called to Cincinnati last Fall, his flock manifested their profound sorrow to lose their beloved and esteemed pastor. The present pastor is Rev. Martin A. Heintz.

In the first year of its existence the parish already established a Catholic school. At different times the school was conducted by members of different religious orders. At present the school is under the Notre Dame Sisters from Cleveland, Ohio, and the parish thanks them for the flourishing condition of the school, which is performing as never before. The number of school children, boys and girls, totals 140 [with three sisters teaching].

The parish is also in a flourishing condition and dares to confidently hope in the future, as in the past, to stride ahead and to prosper, not only for the welfare of a few members but also of all those who value the benefit of Christian influence. At the last estimate of the church wardens, some 250 families belonged to the parish.

Thoughts While Contemplating the RUINS of ST. MARY'S ACADEMY, SOMERSET

by F. J. W. Spencer

What though the sands stain Tadmor's marble white,
The vine clothe Coliseum or Melrose,
What though a Byron waked his harp by night
Amid their courts of grandeur and repose,—

List, did the euphony Time's legions stay,
For evermore to linger in their isles?
Doth their wierd witch notes never wandering play
Like Cato's strings 'round other crumbling piles?

What storied relics deck the march of time!
What ghost-like requiems from nurtured power
Arise from babel throngs felled by his rime
Now heaving high where tottering Memnon's tower

The very void that fashioned the dumb life!
Thy death, St. Mary, simply tells of yore
And types the ruts with which time's tide is rife—
Unleashes restless destiny—what more?

I near with saddened brow where once did blend
 The indices of Heaven and labored lore;
 The moonbeams to the shattered casket lend
 A sheen of woe where ruin seethed before;

Hushed is the offering at the vesper hour,
 The silvery curfew, and the voice of joy
 That once arose, true elements of power,
 To wield the standard that high aims employ.

Fate, so seeming multifarious, calls
 And I depart with doubt upon the tongue
 To view a mighty scroll on which there falls
 Deft argument and pictures one by one,

I see dispersed far o'er our goodly land
 The benefits these walls bestowed amain.
 And turning, long to clasp a Guizot's hand
 And hear him tell how naught was made in vain.

Unto my simple mind it is, forsooth,
 Most wholesome food to wrap me in the woof
 Of thought where noble purity wins ruth
 Through shattered stone and tile thrown so aloof.

St. Mary, soon thy patrons, and shall I,
 Commingle with the dust that oft may rear
 Full many a fane whose classic towers high
 Shall, crumbling, start from other eyes a tear.

The above verses appeared in The Somerset Advocate on July 2, 1868, two years after the fire of June 6, 1866 that destroyed the academy and its chapel and two days before the community of Dominican Sisters moved to Shepard, near Columbus. The identity of the author is not known. The most likely person seems to be John W. Spencer (1845-1925), a school teacher in Somerset, who in 1870 was living at home with his father, attorney William Spencer, and mother and siblings. The family are buried in the Somerset Methodist Cemetery. But this does not explain the first initial of "F."

A few identifications for today's classically challenged reader:

- Tadmore was an ancient city in present central Syria, disused after the 1500s.
- Melrose is the Abbey in Scotland, in ruins.
- Memnon, according to the Greeks, was the Pharaoh at the time of the Trojan War.
- Francois Guizot (1787-1874) was a French historian, orator, and statesman.

We leave you on your own to look up other unfamiliar words!
